ABOUT CHAD

Some people are born to save others, help humanitarian efforts, and make and leave this world a better place... and Chad Robichaux is one of them. Chad is a former Special Operations Force Recon Marine and DoD contractor with eight deployments to Afghanistan as part of a Joint Special Operations Task Force.

After overcoming his personal battles with PTSD, Chad founded the Mighty Oaks Foundation, a leading non-profit that has served over 500,000 active duty, military veterans, and first responders around the world through faith-based resiliency and recovery programs. Chad also founded Save Our Allies, a non-profit established out of his own personal desire to save his longtime interpreter and friend Aziz from Afghanistan, which led to ultimately rescuing over 17,000 people.

Chad is currently leading operations in Ukraine as the Russian invasion continues. In addition to Chad's military service, he has served our nation as a Special Agent with the U.S. Federal Air Marshal Service and the U.S. State Department as a Surveillance Detection Senior Program Manager and is a Medal of Valor recipient for his bravery beyond the call of duty in law enforcement.

ABOUT CHAD

Chad earned an MBA from New York Institute of Technology and is considered a subject matter expert on PTSD and veterans' care, having advised presidential administrations, Congress, the VA, and the DoD. He was appointed to serve as the chairman of a White House Veterans Coalition under the previous presidential administration.

Chad is an avid skydiver, scuba diver, outdoor enthusiast and is a fourth-degree Brazilian jiu-jitsu black belt under the legendary Master Carlson Gracie Jr., a former professional mixed martial arts champion, and a best-selling author on veterans' care and overcoming life challenges.

He has donated over 350,000 copies of his books to military troops worldwide and is regularly featured by national media outlets. His story is notably shared in two short films by I Am Second and the documentaries, "Never Fight Alone", "Send Me" and "Escape From Afghanistan" on Fox Nation. Currently, a motion picture is being produced based on Chad's Best Selling book, "Saving Aziz."
